PROJECT > Whole House Renovation

Our project is a complete remodel of a 1930's farm house. The original structure is said to have burned in the late 1920's and the family rebuilt a concrete block structure on the existing stone foundation. Dexter Builders completed a total renovation of and addition to the house. On the exterior, Dexter Roof and Siding added a tasteful hip style roof to the flat roof, installed James Hardie Siding and Pella windows. Dexter Block repaired and expanded the stone walls and installed new patios and paths.

Work on the interior included completely remodeling the kitchen and two baths with new custom cabinets, plumbing fixtures, granite and tile. In other parts of the house: floors were refinished or replaced; trim and doors were added or refinished; and the electrical, plumbing, and heating/cooling systems were replaced. Comparing the before photos to the finished product truly shows that any structure can be turned into a gem.
