PROJECT > Kitchen / Bathrooms

The wall that separated the kitchen and dining room was removed along with the stove and cupboards that lined it to create one, large area. A peninsula integrating a cooktop was designed that extends into the space; over it hangs a stainless steel hood, underneath are three roomy drawers for storing cookware. On the wall opposite is a countertop lined with appliance garages, under which is an oven bump out. To preserve counter space, the old refrigerator was replaced by a narrow built-in on one wall and an identical freezer on the other.

A master suite addition allowed the bathroom to be expanded from a half to a full bath. Heated floor, glass countertop, and sunken shower all contribute to a serene oasis.

The second bath exemplifies a managed makeover, keeping the existing wood floor. In a space of less than seven feet, a smaller than standard tub was installed next to a full-sized frameless glass shower.

Too many improvements to list! Come and see!
